SOMETHING OF VALUE

We, the Class of 1958, feel that education is truly "Something of Value." Education is the symbol of hope and confidence in the future of mankind. Education must be of value in solving the problems we face; the problem of achieving world peace, proper respect for human brotherhood, personal happiness, and political, social, and economic welfare.

Education will lead the way to a better world. We believe there is value in the idea that human beings can direct their destinies and that education has a significant part to play in that direction. We believe the ultimate value of living is happiness.

Lord Chesterfield expressed our feelings when he said, "Knowledge is a comfortable and necessary retreat and shelter for us in an advanced age, and if we do not plant it while young, it will give us no shade when we grow old."

A black and white photograph of a desk. On the desk, there is a globe on a stand, a small white duck figurine, a dark apple, and a rectangular notepad. The background is a wall with a repeating pattern of stylized, fan-like shapes. The desk itself is a simple, light-colored wooden structure with two large drawers. A large, white, irregularly shaped graphic element is overlaid on the bottom left of the image, containing the title and a short paragraph.

GRADES

The grades at school were a strange new world, and it was in this world that we began to learn the values of education.

ACTIVITIES

During our school years we have participated in many activities which have taught us the values of co-operation and clean wholesome fun.

HONOR SOCIETY AND BANQUET

No honor conferred by this school excels that represented by the Cincinnati Chapter of the National Honor Society.

The motto of this society is, "Truth is Light," and represents the completeness of thought, the strength of vision, the firmness of purpose, and the courage of conviction.

These are truly values that may be achieved by meeting the standards for membership in our National Honor Society.

SCHOOL FAIR

School fair, one of our school's most important activities, gives every member of our student body an opportunity to show his capabilities in many ways.

We feel that there are many values to be received in growing, conditioning, training and showing animals and competing with others.

Many times we may learn the values of winning a championship ribbon or cup, while again we may learn the values of missing these opportunities by very narrow margins and so of losing and being a good loser.

After all it may not be important that we won or lost; how we won or lost is in many instances more important and may be one of the real values we may gain from our school fair.

We, the Class of '58, dedicate our yearbook, SOMETHING OF VALUE, to the FUTURE CITIZENS of our Central School area.

Debbie and Mark symbolize the spirit with which these citizens approach school, a spirit of great expectation in their search for "something of value."

We sincerely hope that many of our future citizens will find in Cincinnati Central School the values and education they seek in order to prepare themselves for their future in life.

MRS. MUNCY

We sincerely thank our advisors for their kind considerations, patience, and encouragement as they have guided us in our search for, "Something of Value."

MR. BACKLUND

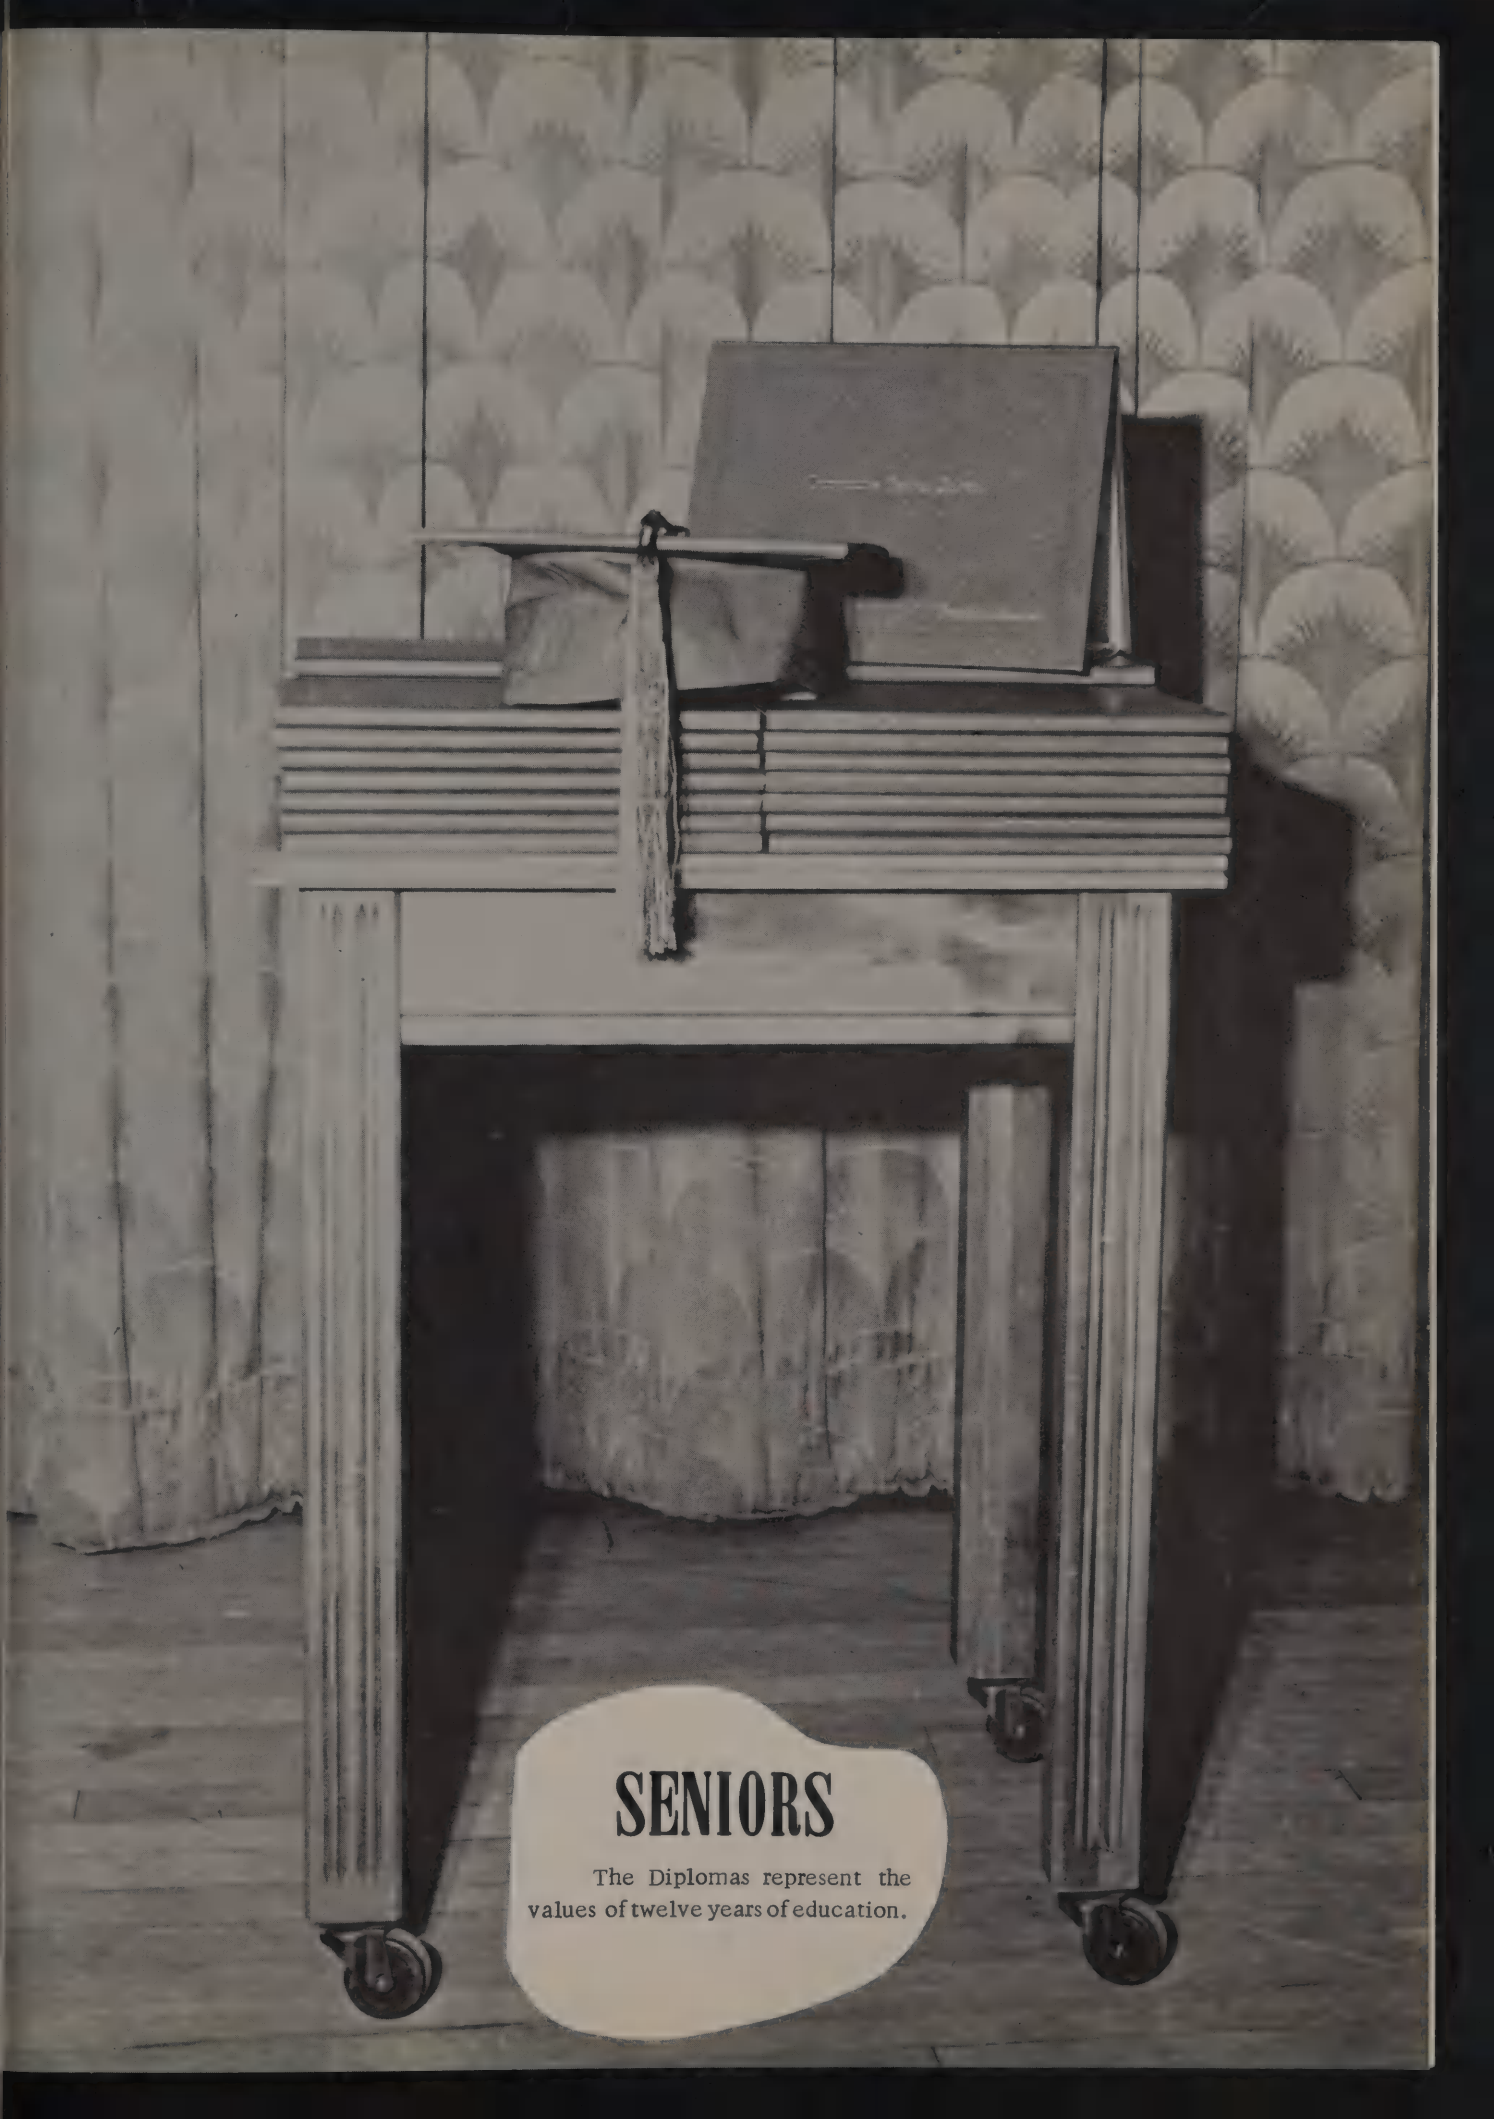

TO THE CLASS OF 1958

A few days ago while reading about the history of the Cincinnatus School, I found a statement attributed to Dr. John McWhorter and written shortly before 1800. In a letter to his sister in Massachusetts, he states that pioneer mothers of this community decided that they must have a school for their children even if it meant scrimping on the necessities of life. He went on to say that this would apparently mean a diet of turnips and salt.

The above statement should leave no doubts about the value placed upon education by the early pioneers of this community. Today, do we consider our school, our church, or our community important enough to make sacrifices comparable to those mentioned above? Are we willing to give up some of the luxuries and personal enjoyments in order to give and offer our services for some worthy cause?

Good schools, good communities and good churches are the result of much sacrifice of both time and money. Many people must be dedicated to service for others. We, perhaps, should remember above all that these unselfish persons need far more help and suggestions with far less destructive criticism.

I hope, if an inventory of our willingness to serve even at a sacrifice were taken, that the results would be in the affirmative. If so, we, like the pioneers of this community can truthfully say education is "something of value".

Each year awards of various types are presented either during the school year or at Commencement by numerous civic groups, merchants and individuals interested in the educational program of our school. These awards in scholarship, citizenship, and achievement in specified fields are not only an incentive to the student to do better work, but also are a reward for that work.

A junior boy is selected each year on the basis of leadership, scholastic ability, and personality and is sponsored by the Knickerbocker Post of the American Legion to represent Cincinnatus at "Empire Boys' State," Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y. for one week. At "Boys' State," he is introduced to various forms of government. Bruce DeMond represented the Class of 1958 at "Empire Boys' State."

Every three years, the American Legion Auxiliary sends a girl to "Empire Girls' State," New Paltz State Teachers College, New Paltz, N. Y. She is a junior selected on the basis of leadership, scholastic ability, sportsmanship, and personality. For nine days she is introduced to various forms of state, county, and local government, and actually takes part in the government of "Girls' State." The Class of 1958 was represented at "Empire Girls' State," by Sharon Smith.

Gene Baker received the plaque for the outstanding Cincinnatus Future Farmer of the year. This award is financed by the A. B. Brown Company.

Cups are awarded by the Cincinnatus Auto Company to the outstanding boy and girl at our school fair each year. This year the cups were won by Sharon and Terry Miller. Funds are furnished by the other merchants of our community to purchase ribbons which are awarded to the school fair exhibitors.

Myrla Campbell and David Currier won this year's P.T.A. award which is presented to the girl and boy who have contributed the most in the broadest sense of our school during their four years of high school.

Awards to the boy and girl who have made the most all-around progress or growth in high school are presented by the Chamber of Commerce. Bruce DeMond and Shirley Young received these awards.

The Rebekah Lodge presents an award to the eighth grade boy and girl who have made the most all-around growth in junior high school. Charles Downs and Sally Diaz received these awards.

Bruce Hakes won the Daughters of the American Revolution award for the eighth grade student showing excellence in honor, courage, service, leadership, and scholarship.

Eighth grade valedictory and salutatory awards were presented to Ruth Davis and Connie Wilbur by the Cincinnatus Auto Company.

The American Agriculturist award was made to Gene Baker for being the outstanding student in Vocational Agriculture. The DeKalb Agriculture Award for outstanding work in Vocational Agriculture was awarded to Gerald Nelson.

The Balfour Award to the senior who has demonstrated outstanding qualities of scholarship, loyalty, and achievement was presented to Sharon Smith.

Robert Dodge won the Bausch and Lomb award as the student showing excellence in high school science.

The Rathbun English award for the most improvement in high school English was earned by Truman Brown.

Fred Downs and Lee Crofoot were presented the music awards for being the senior boy and girl who contributed the most musically to our school and community during their four years in high school. Sue Brown and David Young received the Ralph Bennett awards for the most progress in Junior and Senior Bands. Roxanne Downs received the Clifford Carlton award for the most general improvement musically.

The Athletic Association presents an award to the boy showing excellence in athletics, scholarship, and sportsmanship. Bruce DeMond received this award. Bruce and Sharon Smith won the Babe Ruth Awards.

An award for excellence in Commercial subjects was presented to Shirley Young by the First National Bank.

Hakes Farm Equipment presented Sharon Smith an award for having the highest average in high school mathematics.

Mr. Sleight presented Jane Gates the award for the best attendance in high school.

The Valedictory Award in high school which went to Sondra Cass and the Salutatory Award in high school, which went to Robert Dodge, are presented by the Cincinnatus Auto Company.

This year New York State Regents Scholarships were won by Robert Dodge, Fred Downs, and Gunnar Laett.

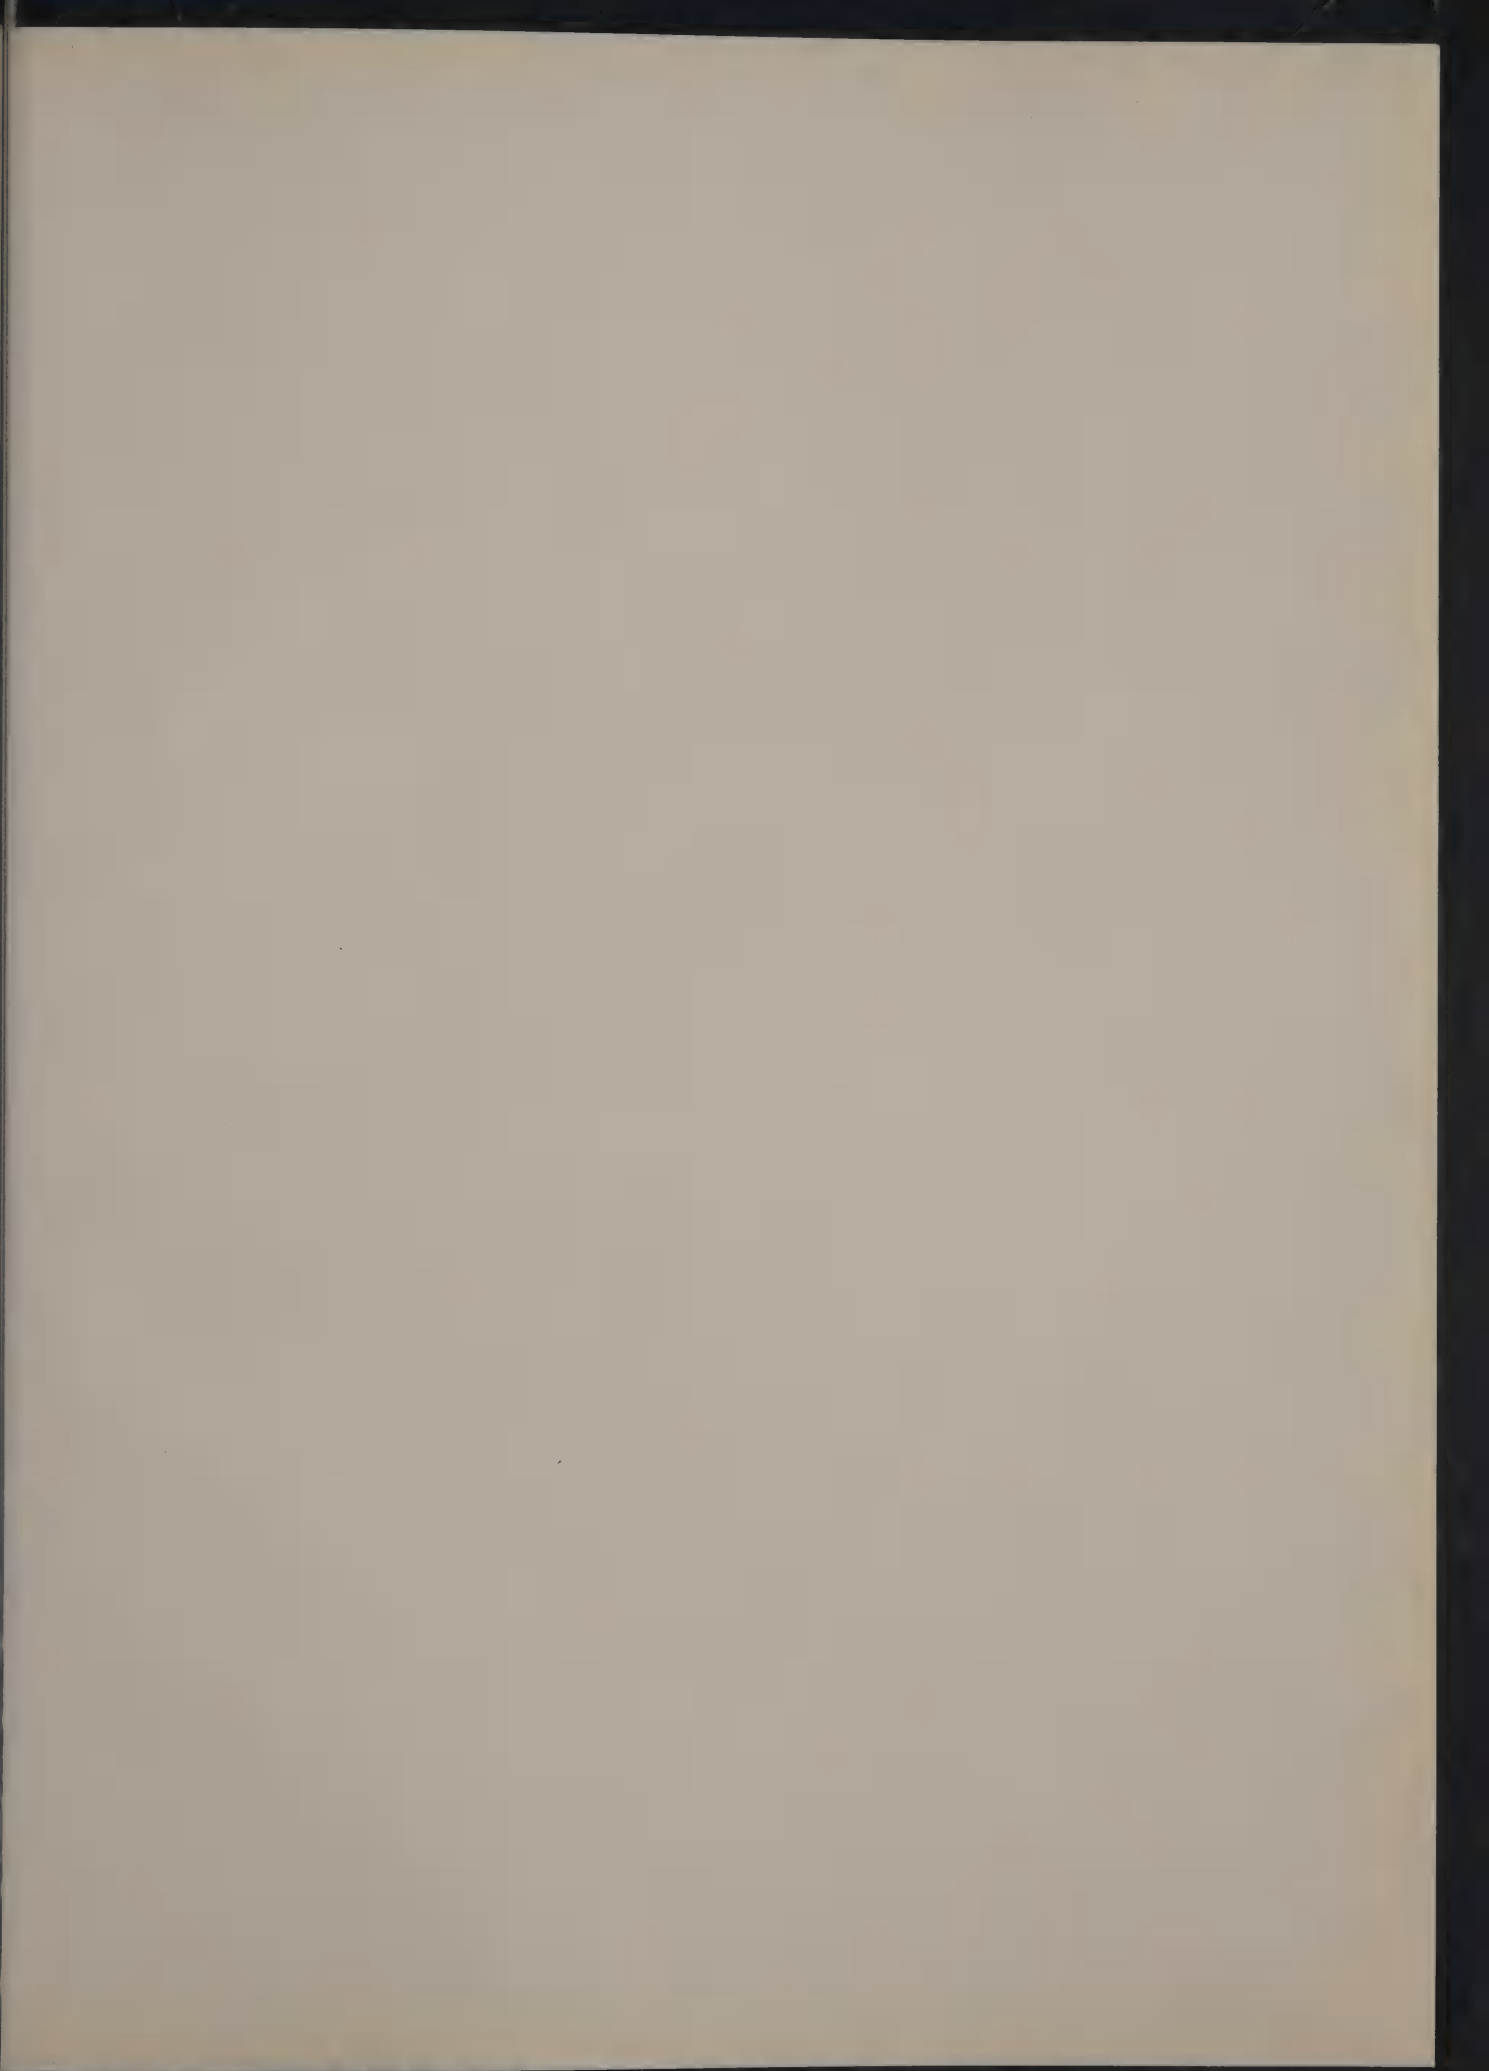

Robert Dodge was also offered Scholarships at Hamilton College and Syracuse University. Robert will attend Rice Institute at Houston, Texas, where he has received a scholarship of $1700 per year or $6800 for his four years of study.

The merchants of Cincinnatus and surrounding area made it possible for our seniors to publish our yearbook, THE LION, through their generously submitted advertisements.

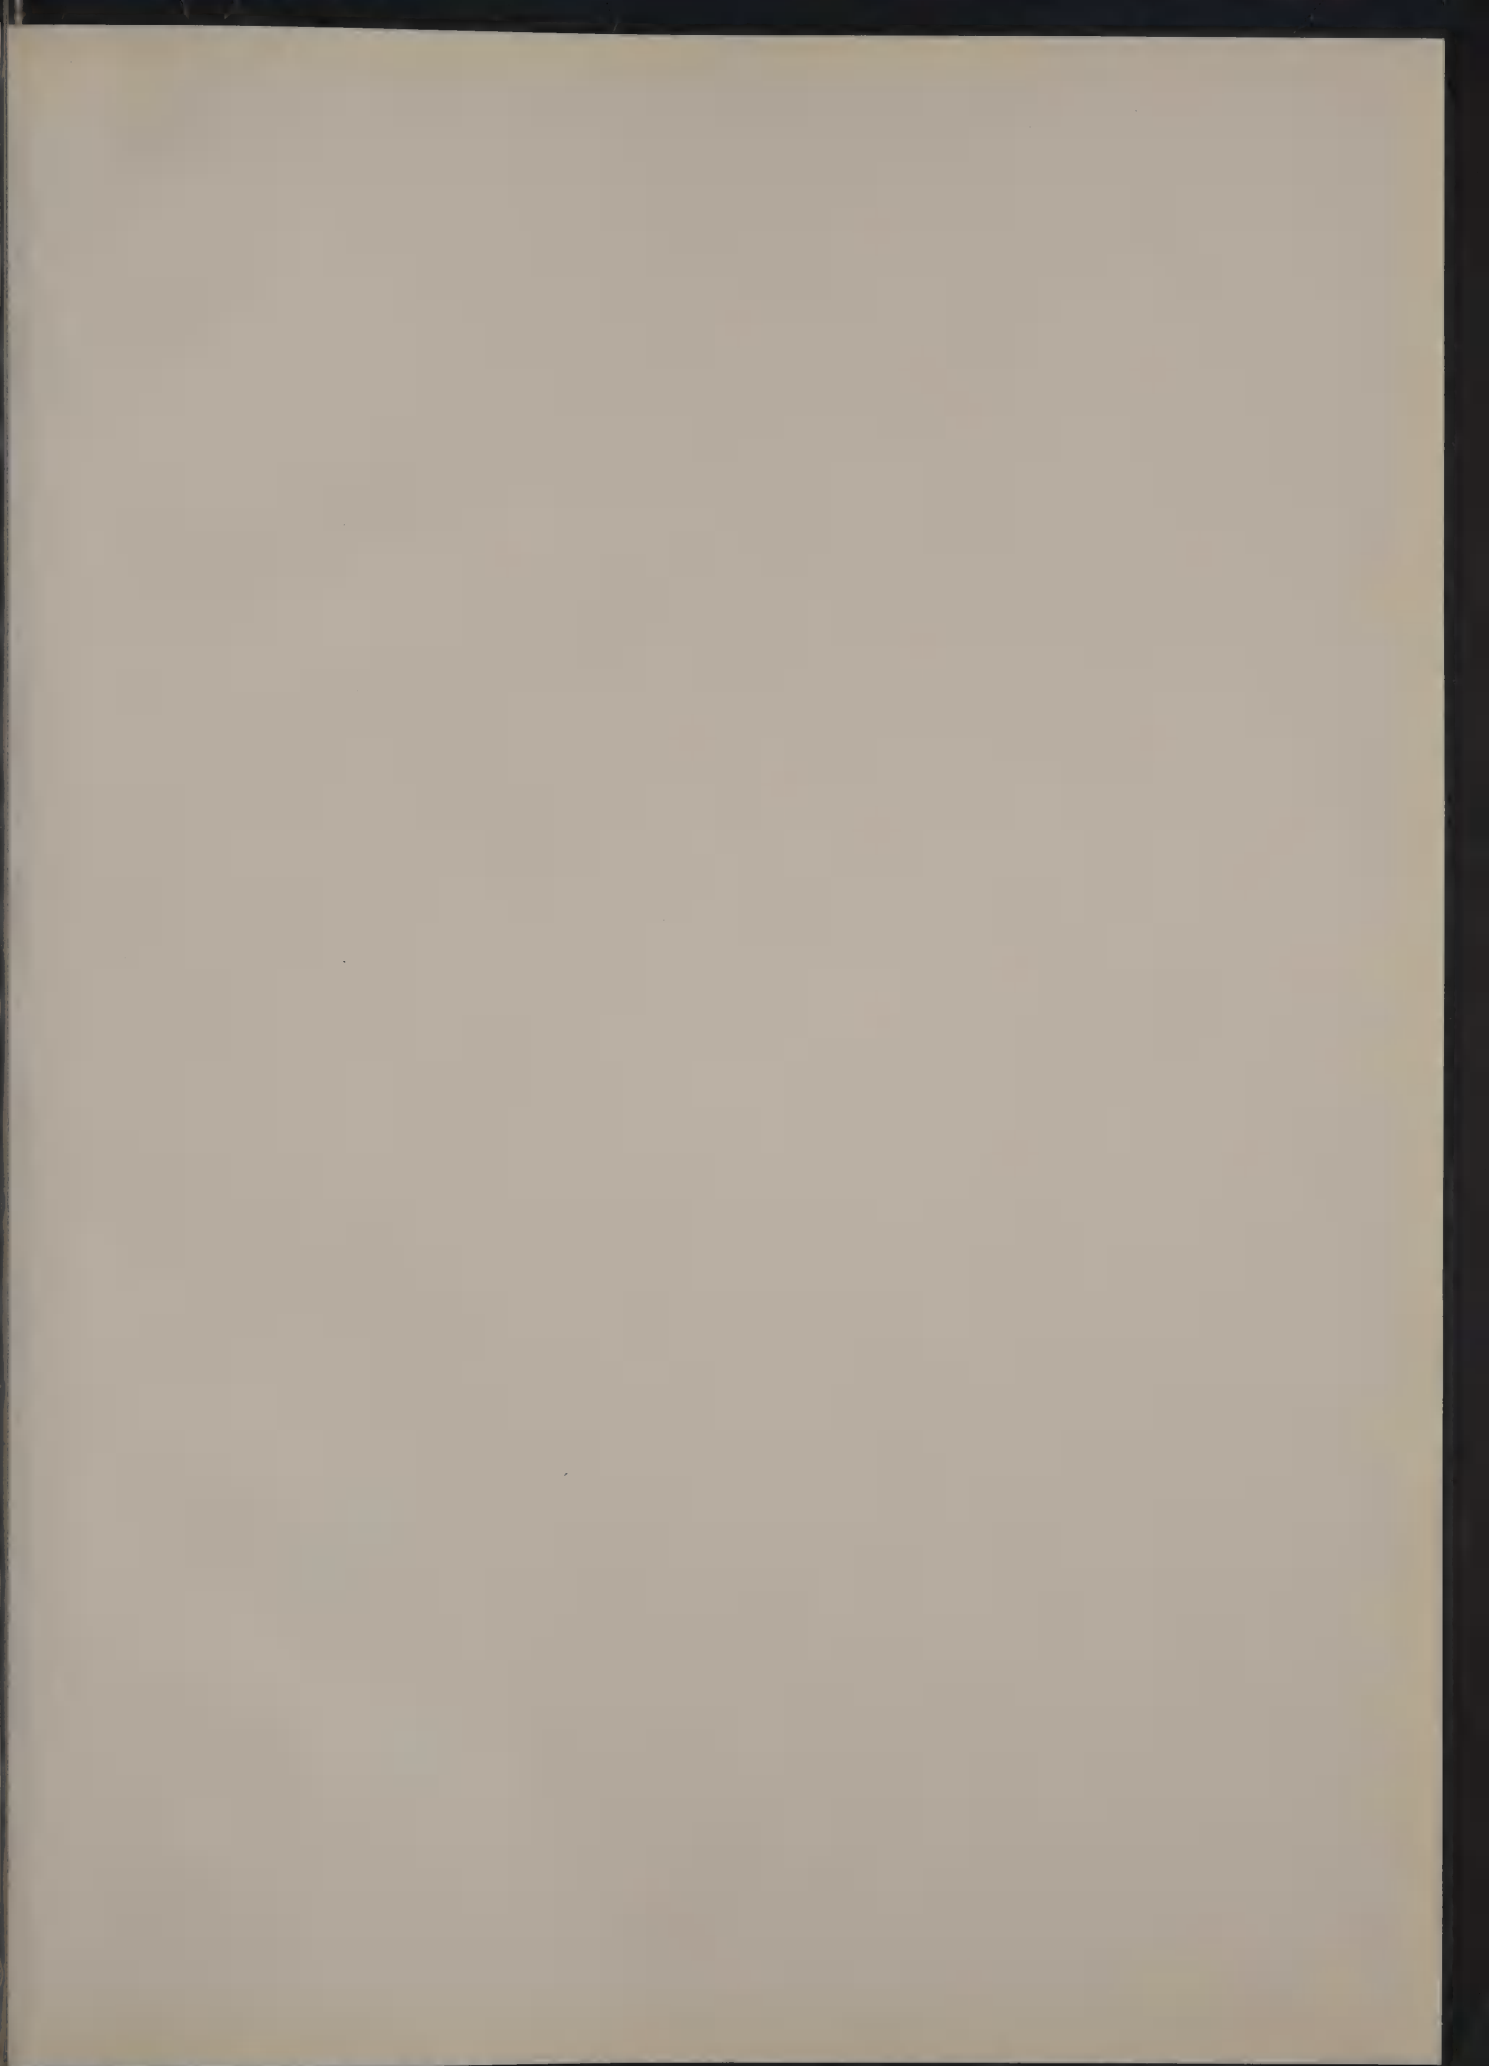

We, the Class of 1958, join with the student body in taking this opportunity to thank each group and every individual who stand behind our school and its students. We sincerely express our grateful appreciation for their many contributions toward our achieving, "SOMETHING OF VALUE."
